If you want to sing glorious music with a great choir in the UK's best venues then you should try out Hertfordshire Chorus.

We are particularly looking for tenors and basses to join our fantastic sections. If you are thinking of returning to singing, or sing in a chamber choir and also want to sing those wonderful symphonic pieces then come and try us out. Look on our website to see the range of exciting singing engagements in addition to our own concerts.

David Temple MBE is one of the country's leading choral conductors, regularly appearing as chorus master at the BBC Proms, preparing choirs for the world's great conductors and orchestras. David's recording work includes the BBC's Doctor Who at Air Studios and music for several films, most recently A Cure for Wellness and Loving Vincent. David has recently prepared a choir for concerts with Hans Zimmer. He has been chorus master for Ennio Morricone and for Andrea Bocelli and also worked with Sir Ray Davies – including at the BBC Proms in the Park – and with Noel Gallagher.

Hertfordshire Chorus is one of the finest and busiest symphonic choirs in the UK and is on your doorstep. It regularly performs with the BBC Concert Orchestra and has recently been broadcast on BBC Radio 3 and BBC Radio 2. Our latest critically acclaimed CD Ode to a Nightingale (Will Todd) and Codebreaker (James McCarthy) was recorded with the BBC Concert Orchestra for Signum Records.

Reviewed by Radio 3 presenter Rob Cowan “launched with their customary bright and rich tone by the Hertfordshire Chorus under their indefatigable conductor, David Temple”.

The Chorus performed its latest commission One Giant Leap by James McCarthy at the Queen Elizabeth Hall, London's Southbank.
